Amendments to the Specification:

Please amend the paragraph beginning on page 12, line 7 of the specification as follows:

The appropriate plugin may depend upon the operating system utilized by the destination location. For example, a first plugin may extract the information contained in the data file shown in figure 6 and rehydrate the information into an object recognized by the first operating system. Furthermore, a second plugin may be used to extract and rehydrate the same information into an object recognized by a second operating system. In one embodiment of the invention, a plugin or parser may be attached to the software envelope. For example, the software envelope may contain the data file and the plugin object.
